TITLE - ABHAVYA

Medium - charcoal

Durga Puja is the heart of my city which comes alive with lights and sounds of music, 'pandals'. Every neighborhood gets its own idol. This piece was inspired by the beautiful Durga idol in my neighborhood. According to the scriptures, Lord Shiva called goddess Durga by 108 different names in order to please her, Abhavya is one of them. Abhavya means fear-imposing. I especially liked this 11 feet tall warrior-like strong goddess ready to fight evil. This sketch was done before they painted the goddess's eyes, a ritual at the start of the celebrations. Without the eyes she looks even more terrifying, that's why I titled the sketch, Abhavya.
